VOLUME 25, No. 1 DECEMBER 2007

PAST PRESIDENT'S CORNER—MARK FLAMMANG

I was recently asked by my former graduate school advisor, Dave Willis at South Dakota State University, what I've seen change in my job since I started. He said he was interested in telling students what things to concentrate on when preparing to become a Fisheries Management Biologist. I sat for a moment and thought about what changes had occurred since I started here in 1995. The first thing that came to mind is we lost our pheasants. I didn't think that was what he was looking for. The second thing that came to mind was I got older and grayer. Again, not what he was after. I stopped and realized how much things have changed when it comes to fishery management. When I graduated I knew how to track changes in fish populations, I knew how to develop case histories and apply length regulations. I thought I knew how to carry on an active public relations campaign and how to address the public in a way that allowed us to share opinions. The question begs then, what parts of my job have I had to grow in to? I told Dave that developing and operating in partnership programs aimed at improving the overall water quality of systems is a big step for me. Once I figured out that all the people at these big round tables (the power boaters, the jet skiers, the sail boaters, the Corps of Engineers, the anglers, and the hunters) all had a common goal, one that had the potentials to make these lakes better for all Iowans, things became much clearer. In short, one of the biggest realizations I have had in these 12+ years is that water quality IS the KEY. This concept of improved water quality plays well into our concept and practice of lake restoration. Dave gave the Iowa DNR Fisheries Bureau the highest of complements. "When it comes to lake restoration, Iowa leads the way!". We all (all AFS members) can take pride in that. We all have a role to play, whether that is as a DNR biologist or a volunteer. The truth is we know there is value in improving Iowans water bodies and it is showing, and not just to Iowans. That is a legacy that all AFS members can be proud of.

The second part of this story is not so rewarding. Unfortunately 2007 has been a year of incredible frustration for me as a management biologist. Introduced species, both native and nonnative had required and deserved far too much of my time this year. In this eight county management district for which Bruce Ellison and I are responsible we have identified the near complete collapse of one of Iowa's best large-mouth bass fisheries since gizzard shad were introduced into this system in about 2004. We identified two new shad populations that have arisen from illegal stockings that probably took place in 2006. Lake Humeston in Wayne County and the highly popular Lake Wapello in Davis County now abound with this pest species. Recently in one week I discovered silver carp have moved up the Missouri River, up the Chariton River and have found a strong foothold below Lake Rathbun. I also had the great misfortune of identifying live adult zebra mussels on a large boat moored at the Rathbun Marina through the summer of 2007. This boat was delivered from the Mississippi River to Lake Rathbun in the matter of about 12 hours, despite our best attempts at education and directions to many individuals to be on the look out for such critters (see story inside this newsletter). Truly we have work to do when it comes to education. I am surprised by the lack of consideration from the general public when it comes to the long-term consequences of such introductions.

SPECIAL THANK YOU

I guess the long and the short of my conversation with Dave was this. I still do everything you taught me to do, but I learn every year about how diverse our resources are, and the challenges those resources face. I hope I can continue to learn new ways of rising above those challenges. As such, I hope that all of us, all AFS members are up to this challenge. I feel confident that AFS will continue to grow and our group will add to fisheries knowledge in Iowa and as our students graduate, across the country. I believe there are many answers that will help us deal with these challenges, and with effort many of our challenges can be surmounted!

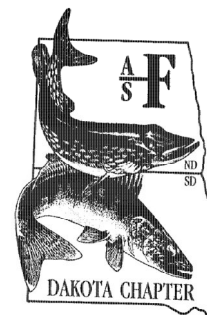

Alan Johnson has graciously put together Lateral Lines for the past several years. This edition represents his final edition (for now). We thank him for his hard work on many great issues. Alan was instrumental in the transition of Later Lines from paper to the electronic bits and bytes you are reading now.

THANKS ALAN!

Please welcome Kim Hawkins as the new Lateral Lines editor.

He also presented in absence the North Central Division Fisheries Excellence Award to Kay Hill. Hill's nomination was submitted by Don Kline and Don Bonneau.

President Flammang presented the Iowa Chapter AFS Past President Award to Past President Muhm.

President Flammang suggested that retired Iowa DNR Fisheries Bureau employees John Pitlo and Tom Boland be nominated for the North Central Division Fisheries Excellence Award.

Old Business

President Flammang announced that the application due date for the Chapter's fisheries habitat grants will change to August 1 to match the Chapter's fiscal year. The Chapter looks to award two grant per year. Project extensions are allowed, but they need to be reviewed by the EXCOM.

New Business

None

Randy Schultz motioned to adjourn, Jeff Kopaska seconded it, and the motion passed unanimously. The meeting adjourned at 3:52 PM.

Iowa Chapter of the American Fisheries Society EXCOM Meeting18 January 2007*Holiday Inn, Council Bluffs, Iowa

President Mark Flammang called the meeting of the Iowa Chapter (Chapter) Executive Committee (EXCOM) to order at 12:05 PM. Members attending were President Flammang, Past President Donna Muhm, Secretary/Treasurer Kim Bogenschutz, Mike Quist, Sarah Kaatz, Ben Dodd, Randy Schultz, Student Subunit President Jon Lore, and Student Subunit President Elect Adam Havard. President Elect Mike Hawkins was absent.

President Flammang requested approval of the agenda (attached). Past President Muhm motioned to approve the agenda, Quist seconded it, and the motion carried unanimously.

Meeting Expenses

President Flammang requested that invoices for meeting and raffle item expenses be submitted to Secretary/Treasurer Bogenschutz. President Flammang has the final expenses and contract from the hotel. He and Secretary/Treasurer Bogenschutz need to get together with the Nebraska and Kansas Chapters after registration to figure out each chapter's share of expenses. The Chapter received two complimentary hotel rooms in the Hampton Inn that will be used for student member attendees.

2008 Budget

President Flammang handed out the 2008 proposed budget (attached) and explained that it is basically the same as the 2007 proposed budget. The Chapter did not spend funds on continuing education last year because training was hosted by Clay Pierce at Iowa State University. Secretary/Treasurer Bogenschutz shared the 2006 Financial Report with the attendees. The Chapter disbursed over $2500 more than receipts collected. Some of the extra expenses came from awarding three grants, finalizing payment on a previous grant, and extra expenses at the annual meeting. Discussion followed about how long we should extend payments for grants that are not completed on time. Dodd will audit the report prior to the business meeting. Quist explained that a university committee decides the recipient of the ISU Scholarship. He also explained that the Student Affairs Committee will handle the Joan Duffy Travel Award. The North Central Division matches it with an additional $100 and needs to know the process the Chapter uses to award the recipient. Discussion followed as to whether we needed to alter the bylaw to assign this to the Student Affairs Committee, but it was determined that this was not needed. No changes were requested for the proposed budget.

Grant Requests

Grant applications were due January 1, and no applications were submitted. Discussion followed that grant applications should be due August 1 to coincide with the fiscal year. The EXCOM holds a meeting in August and can review grant applications at that time. We need to advertise this grant opportunity to remind Chapter members and attract potential applicants. President Flammang suggested that we send an email to all Chapter members with the application attached. The grant application form is also on the Chapter website. The Student Subunit was going to develop a pamphlet for distribution and posting on the website according to last year's EXCOM notes. We need to help the Student Subunit with this. The EXCOM might also need to develop guidelines for awarding funds if we get many applications.

Old Business

President Flammang reminded attendees of discussion at last January's EXCOM meeting about having an online scholarship donation form. Past President Muhm would still like to pursue this. Other chapters have used raffles to build up a trust fund in order to use interest from the trust fund for scholarships. Discussion followed that it would take a long time to build up a trust fund large enough to only use the interest for a scholarship. Discussion also followed as to whether we want to offer an additional scholarship or use the donations/trust fund to fund current scholarship. The EXCOM will continue to look pursue setting up an online donation form and will evaluate the amount of funds donated before deciding on their use.

New Business

The DNR is changing its hiring procedures for temporary positions. All applicants need to submit an application available on the DNR Fisheries website by February 7. Discussion followed as to whether we should post this new process and list of seasonal jobs available on the Chapter website. The Student Subunit currently posts job opportunities on its website. Steve Waters and Past President Muhm are putting together a list of jobs available in 2007 to put on the DNR website. Quist gives all job opportunities he receives to Lyn VanDePol to post on the student center bulletin board.

The Student Subunit is sponsoring the poster session at the annual meeting and wants to provide funds for refreshments during that time. They can submit a check to Secretary/Treasurer Bogenschutz, and the Chapter will use those funds to offset our share of expenses for refreshments for that session.

The Student subunit will be having raffle and are using red tickets. The Chapter is using pink and green tickets. Winners of high dollar raffle items will be announced at the Friday night social, and winners of smaller items will be posted on a board. Winners will need to contact Dodd or Kaatz to claim prizes. Chapter raffle tickets will be $1 a piece, 6 for $5, 12 for $10, or 26 for $20 and can be placed in any prize bucket.

Preparation for Business Meeting

President Flammang reminded committee chairs to be prepared to give their reports. The Chapter will be presenting awards for best student paper, best student poster, and best professional paper among Iowa presenters. Plaques will be ordered after the meeting. Awards that will be announced at the meeting are Kay Hill receiving the North Central Division Fisheries Excellence Award and the Student Subunit sharing the North Central Division Most Active Student Subunit with the Southern Illinois Student Subunit.

President Flammang said he cannot report on next year's meeting because President Elect Hawkins is not here. President Elect Hawkins has expressed concern over not having travel funds available next year for members to attend the annual meeting. The Dakota Chapter will be meeting in South Dakota in 2008, and it was suggested that it would be a good time to have a joint meeting with them.

Secretary/Treasurer Bogenschutz motioned to adjourn, Student Subunit President Lore seconded it, and the motion passed unanimously. The meeting adjourned at 12:53 PM.
